

I just wanted to voice the thought that removing current Broadcast Ownership rules would be a big mistake. The government prides itself on keeping "Big Buisness" at bay, and working to strike back at monopolies. If they didnt why would Microsoft be in such big trouble these days? So why would it be a good idea to repeal rules that would make it easier for "Big Media" to merge together? We believe that monopolies are bad, but in this case the results would be catastrophic. The government should not, and can not, condone one type of monopoly while supporting another.
